MESSAGE FROM DEAN, SCHOOL OF LAW (HILSR)

(Editor-in-chief's Note)

It gives me great joy to present the first issue of the review for you all to engage and interact with. This issue aspires to further broaden the horizons of the subject-area, while encompassing an in-depth analysis of the various aspects of theory and practice of law and jurisprudence.

I must acknowledge and appreciate the overwhelming response of the contributors who have shown an unprecedented amount of enthusiasm in being a part of this publication and have adhered to our guidelines and made their submissions in a time-bound manner. The variety of topics and methodologies that the contributors have contemplated upon and presented in the papers has considerably enriched this issue of the HILSR Law Review and would go a long way in enhancing the knowledge seeking tradition of the discipline.

This inaugural edition also reflects the collaborative efforts of a dedicated editorial team and a robust peer-review process that ensured the highest standards of academic rigour. The meticulous attention to detail and commitment to quality exhibited by the editors and reviewers is deeply commendable, and I take this opportunity to thank them for their invaluable contribution in shaping this issue.

I invite all our readers – students, scholars, practitioners and enthusiasts, to delve into the pages of this edition with curiosity and critical thought. It is our sincere hope that the articles presented here not only contribute meaningfully to existing scholarship but also inspire further research and dialogue in the field of law.
